When you look at the cars on the grid with the current 2017 rules, they are very close together in performance. The rules are also very new for the 2017 season, and most teams that are based in Europe and using the 2016 regulations, who have been running all year, will not have access to the new cars until they enter the 2018 season. For a team like GEOX Dragon, which has only finished 6th in the first half of this season and is no doubt struggling with the new 2017 regulations, it is very hard to change the direction of a team, especially when the team is already coming off a tough season. With a little help from Sette Camara, GEOX Dragon looks to have a good shot at 2019 though and things will change after that. In the meanwhile, SPEED's news about Sette Camara is good news for fans of Formula E. Sette Camara's participation had seemed to be a long shot, with, as we've seen, Sette Camara's entry into F3 European series being the first clue that he was focused on road racing. For more on the Fiat-Abarth project that Sette is helping to develop, read our report here. Heres the thing, though - even though the Marrakech track is an established, reliable circuit with no concerns about weather, there is no opportunity to test out your charger. After the event, youre ready for the on-track action. Thats why Penske is getting the NIO 333 team a day later to check out the situation, as well as the sim work which is going on. While theres no chance of sims really matching the reality of the setting sun setting over Marrakech, neither is there any need to get their first day. If you have any questions about the NIO 333 Team or about whether or not you think NIO can challenge the backmarkers for the title, please submit a Comment. The companys primary concern is the safety of its driver, but it has also sent Marcel Weiss, whom we also sent a letter from our CEO, to see what he can do to ease the ride of Sette Camara and NIO 333 Team.

the way. the cars have looked incredible from the start of testing, with the wider front wings on the cars already making them look even more stunning. another driver, who impressed in the test days at Fiorano, is Adam Tonsen, a Norwegian who has already impressed the Ferrari Driver Academy with his debut season in the ATCS Formel 3 series in the UK. He is one of the three drivers who will represent ATCS in the 2021 F3 Championship. In addition to that, he has also got the support of Tony Kart, his scouting partner, for 2020.
