Field of the Invention The present invention relates to nanomaterial synthesis techniques and methods and more specifically, to methods of synthesizing nanomaterials of polymer compounds having reactive groups, and nanocomposites derived therefrom. Background Information The novel nanomaterials synthesized by the process of the present invention are very effective at stabilizing other nanomaterials in solution. In particular, the aggregates formed in the process of the present invention have been used to capture nanoparticles of other metals, particularly platinum or gold nanoparticles. Surface-protected nanomaterials have been used as nanocarriers for the delivery of various compounds. The nanocarriers include liposomes, micelles, dendrimers, and nanotubes. These nanocarriers generally encapsulate the compounds within their interior cavities, but direct surface modification techniques have also been developed to attach functional groups to the surface of the nanocarriers. The surface-modification of nanomaterials can also be used to enhance the dispersibility of the nanomaterials in a solvent. A review of the use
