The second batch of free HD Maps of Western Europe is now available on TomTom.com and the TomTom Store. This improves TomToms HD Map, reducing the time it takes to generate HD Maps from 2.5 hours to just 20 minutes and increasing the area covered by the maps by 50%. TomTom customers with TomTom Maps are able to benefit from the fast updating cycle via the TomTom Home app and can choose to have their HD Map update every two weeks, one week, or even weekly by selecting the option in the TomTom App menu. With a market value of 2.7 billion euros, the group is comprised of fourteen brands, including a leading player in automotive navigation systems, TomTom, Pure Navigation, TomTom LIVE, TomTom Traffic and TomTom Cars. In 2017, TomTom services were used by more than 30 million people, with more than 18 million navigation systems sold, the company has 73 offices worldwide and about 4500 employees. The project was the first time that TomTom and Google have collaborated on a road map project. The companies agreed that TomToms area coverage was not enough to enable safe autonomous driving yet. Therefore, it made sense to create a new set of HD Maps, with a higher resolution, which would cover up to the whole of Western Europe. The main added value of this partnership was that it gave customers the assurance of a complete and total road network, as well as the benefits of the high resolution. the updates to the road maps will take place automatically and customers can switch their tomtom device on and go on their journeys without having to do anything. the updates will be protected by the tomtom map security system and customers can switch on and off the updates from within the tomtom app, according to the release.
