Like Ebay's User Control Panel where you can disable, switch off, or switch on the Inventor red button (PANEL button) click. Follow the below steps: 1)Click on Tools>Options on the menu bar. 2)Set the "InventorRedButton.RedButtonType" setting to 4 (trash can) as shown below. 3)Click OK on the drop down menu to Apply. You should now see a trash can icon next to the Inventor red button on your screen. You will want to set this option on your screens and bring that icon up every time you start Inventor. Ask HN: How do I move my SVN repository to a more easily accessible location? - yan I recently tried to move my SVN repository to a new server to make my life easier but was having some weird problems that I'm unsure how to fix.I had the repo setup to be stored in the directory /home/myusername/www/svn/repository and tried moving it there. After downloading it to my new server, it said that the server needed to be reconfigured.I did that and now I can't seem to make any changes to the repository. If I try to upload new revisions, it just uploads a blank.svn folder.I can fix this by moving the files back to the server I'm currently on, but I was wondering if there's a better solution. ====== cperciva If you're on an OS which does not have an integrated SVN server (ie, not a *nix or Windows system), then it's probably because you haven't configured your repository properly. You need a repo.conf file in your repository root directory. _isOpen) { if (_isOpen &&
