This version is an update of the previous version of COSIMIR Professional (Unified COSIMIR Professional).Hey, Vsauce. I'm Michael. I have to put my head back. I've been staring at a monitor so long that it's starting to hurt. Oh, man. [MUSIC] I know that the mouse is a simple device. But there's one big, important detail about it that I've overlooked. I'm going to go one-on-one with my mouse. Hey, guy, wanna play a game? Sure. Let's start by loading up a web page. This is the home page of the Dr.Seuss library. Ugh. [MUSIC] Oh, double ugh. I'm going to scroll down. Let's scroll right. Oh! Wait, I'm just going to drag this window all the way to the left. Mm. Drinking my lunch right now. But again, you missed the big one: Windows has the capability of resizing the window to any size. My mouse has no way of knowing that. So it just assumes that this is the size that it wants to be and tries to make it into that size. But, of course, this isn't the size that I want. So, what I need to do is I need to tell Windows that this is the size that I want.
